

November 21, 2021
NYPost.com

NEW YORK POST

By Steve Cuozzo

The Wilf family's Skyline Developers has nailed down 82,427 square feet in 13 new leases at 1040 Sixth Avenue.

Several of the new leases are on the third, 12th and 20th floors of the tower, which Skyline converted into pre-built office suites and custom build-to-suit spaces.

Skyline Development President Orin Wilf has seen his family's company rack up 13 new leases at 1040 Sixth Ave.
Paul Bruinooge/Patrick McMullan

Among the new tenants are accounting firm Bonadio & Co., law firm Meiowitz & Wasserberg and software developer Brightidea.

Skyline also worked with brokerage Newmark to restructure and/or extend existing leases totaling 36,074 square feet. Those tenants included legal services firm Update, insurer services company FJA US, and media company Outdoor Sportsman Group.

Skyline founder and president Orin Wilf said, “We worked closely with our existing and potential tenants to understand the needs, concerns and to develop unique solutions that support the flexibility necessary for them to be successful.”

<https://nypost.com/2021/11/21/grand-central-skyscraper-would-bring-new-lirr-connection/>